

Paranormal World of Karen Ford

REPORT

Binstead Woods
Tortington Lane, Tortington, West Sussex
5th January 2007
10pm – 12am

Arrival

We arrived at the site and it felt quite different to when I had been there last time. It felt very normal, like any other wood and not at all eerie or strange in any way. We decided to take a walk around the area, and again there was not a lot to report at all.

The Old Mansion Site

One of the group decided to venture onto the old mansion site whilst the rest of us stayed by the fields. There was not a lot to report until he was calling out for something to happen. From where we were standing we heard quite a loud crack and could also hear voices talking, although not clear enough to work out what they were saying. In the area the member of the group had seen a piece of wood move down a pile of wood for no apparent reason, and not making as much noise as we had heard. He had also been unaware of the voices.

When we went and joined him in the area I became aware of a lady with two children, a girl and a boy, who were around, but just visiting. There was a gentleman I became aware of as well, who was some sort of grounds man. This man had been quite small and thin and would have had a very bent back. He was a bit of a strange character and was very much a loner. The lady and child were quite wary of him. I was also made aware of a fire in the building that had been there and was also shown burn marks down the side of a face.

The Lake and Wood

We walked around the lake area, without any incident at all, and then up into the wood. Both felt absolutely fine and nothing strange or unusual at all. We tried some EVP in the wood and left a camera by the lake, but with nothing to report on either.

Conclusion

This was a very different atmosphere to the previous time I had been to this location. The odd feeling of being watched and strange presences had disappeared. It was almost as if someone had come down and cleansed it. What was interesting was that the rubbish that was there previously had been cleared, so maybe this was the cause of the change??